George A. Huntington, 62, of Sharon, Mass., a former resident of Mansfield, was found dead Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock by Wayne Stern in one of the rooms in the Baptist church at Spring Hill. Mr. Huntington was engaged in tending a piano at the church for a social that was to be held at the church during the evening. Medical Examiner Dr. R. F. Conners of Willimantic was summoned and pronounced death due to apoplexy. The news of the death of Mr. Huntington came as a shock to his many friends in this city, and especially to Mrs. F. E. Johnson of No. 66 Windham street, at whose home Mr. Huntington had visited. Wednesday of this week Mr. Huntington who had been troubled with pains in his hands and arms, learned from a doctor that blood pressure was the cause. Friday morning he was seemingly in the best of health and had been engaged to tune the piano at the Spring Hill church he would have been the guest of Mrs. Johnson at dinner. He was born in Eggleston March 11, 1859, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Huntington. His mother died when he was a young boy. After attending the public schools and the select school for boys at Storrs, where the Connecticut Agricultural college now is located, he took up piano tuning as an occupation. For some time he carried on this business in Brooklyn, N. Y., and for many years he ran a children farm at Mansfield.

Brooklyn, N. Y., died very suddenly at the home of the Rinkens.

Friday, July 1st, Mrs. Mary Davies entered into the Abundant Life from the home of her father, Charles Sanford, of South Chapel, in to preach at the church Sunday. The three lost their home in this place by fire in January, 1920, later moving to Norwich where Benjamin Davies had secured electrical work. Recently Mrs. Davies had bought Axel Holmstrom's little house, intending it for a home to which they would come when its remodeling was completed. The greater part of Mrs. Davies' life was spent with her family in Spuyten Duvvill, N. Y., where she and Mrs. Warren were members of Edgewood Presbyterian church and bringing their letters to Westminster. Mrs. Davies was followed by a large number of friends who had the tenderest care for the daughter with whom she lived. Her last illness was very short. Her son, Benjamin and William of this place, and her other daughter, Mrs. William Johnson, also of Westminster, were with her most of the time. Short services were conducted at her home by Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church and burial was at Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

A sincere Christian and always in her place when physically able, a devoted mother, a good neighbor and loyal friend, she will be greatly missed. Two sons, two daughters, two grand-daughters, two great-grandsons and two great-granddaughters survive her.

Mrs. A. T. New York left the hospital for her mother's home last week, for a few days' change and visit before going to a convalescent home for a time. The second birthday of Manfred Moody was celebrated July 4th by a party.
